GRAND JURY REPORTS 28 INDICTMENTS

May Term Superior Court Making Good Progress

The May term of Court opened at Rumford on Tuesday of last week. On Wednesday, the first case tried was that of the Mexican Petroleum Corporation vs. Emilio N. Gauthier. In the fall of 1929 a car of gasoline was sent to Gauthier by mistake and it was arranged to store the gasoline in Gauthier's tank during the winter. In the spring a pipe connected with the tank was broken by an automobile, causing a loss of 5,200 gallons. After a half hour's deliberation the jury returned a verdict for the plaintiff for $557.74, the amount sued for.

The case of Mrs. Frances Oppenheim of Rumford vs. William H. Mallor of Lewiston, was to recover $130 for damages done to household goods by the defendant in moving from Lewiston to Rumford. The verdict was $75.00 for the defendant.

In the case of E. N. Gauthier vs. Samuel Foster, both of Rumford, suit was brought to recover for the cost of repairing an automobile belonging to Gauthier while driven by Foster. The verdict was $270.90 for the plaintiff.

A. E. Small & Sons of Mexico brought suit against Mrs. Flora Kidder of Rumford to recover for lumber. The defendant's husband claimed he bought the lumber, paying for the same with a note, and that Mrs. Kidder had nothing to do with the deal. Verdict for plaintiff, $242.47.

On Friday the grand jury reported 28 indictments. The following were made public:

Tony Lombardi, manufacturing liquor.
Raymond O. Winter, manslaughter.
Fred Murphy, breaking, entering and larceny.
Leonard Cole, forgery.
James Fannphy, St. Johnsbury, Vt., forgery.

Wendell B. Berry, forgery.
Joseph Turner, forgery.
Kenneth S. Berry, forgery.
Raymond Edwards, forgery.

Vincent Douglas and Arthur Cormier, breaking, entering and larceny.
Reynold Tracy, forgery.
Leo Lohel and Parker Bartlett, larceny.

Braest Milton, liquor nuisance.
Frank Botkus, statutory rape.
Romeo Salario, forgery.
Andrew Gallant, larceny with liquor in his possession.

Dominic Gironda, illegal possession.
Alex Stelmok, nuisance.
Mike Shippen, keeping and depositing.
Kenneth Keene, Buckfield, cheating by false pretenses.

Wilfred Boyle, Mexico, statutory rape.
Sentences were imposed Tuesday afternoon on seven of the ten men who pleaded guilty to indictments at the morning session.

Leonard Cole, alias Harold Stevens, of Greenwood, pleaded guilty to forgery. He was sentenced to the Men's Reformatory at South Windham for not less than six months.

Raymond Edwards of Rumford and James Fannphy were sentenced to the Reformatory. Edwards was charged with forgery and larceny of the automobile of J. B. O'Kane of Rumford, and Fannphy for forgery. In all of the above cases the checks were drawn on the Bethel National Bank.

Leo Lohel of Rumford, 15 years of age, was sentenced to the State School for Boys at South Portland. He was charged with larceny of an automobile.

Fred Murphy of Albany was guilty of breaking and entering the farmhouse of Ada Dunham and the larceny of a telescope. He was sentenced to the State prison for not less than two or more than four years.

Andrew Gallant was sentenced to 30 days in jail and a fine of $100 and costs with 60 days additional in default of payment. He was guilty of larceny at a dance hall with liquor on his person.

Mike Shippen of Rumford, guilty of illegal possession, was sentenced to serve two months in jail, $100 fine and costs, with 60 days additional in default of payment.

On Wednesday the case of Ralph P. Hall of Oxford vs. Walter C. Pottis of Auburn was taken up. This was the result of a collision at the junction of the Oxford-East Oxford road and the Norway-Poland Spring road, last November between cars belonging to the above parties. As a result of the accident Hall suffered serious injuries and is still unable to work. The case was continued until this Thursday morning.

An all day meeting of the Women's Division of the Paris Bureau is scheduled for May 23 in the Grange Hall. Subject, "Reconditioning the Wardrobe" will be charge of Mrs. Little Inman, clothing project leader. Miss Dora Delany, H. B. A., will be present.

GOULD 11—RUMFORD 6

GOULD Academy went on a hitting rampage and collected 19 hits for 11 runs to defeat Rumford 11-6. Bud Browne with four hits, and Hinkley, McNally, and Roberts with three each led the attack. McNally and Quimby came through with a home run apiece. Quimby pitched fine ball for the winners. He struck out 11 men and allowed only seven scattered hits. Only two earned runs were made against him.

FOSTER CONTEST

In conjunction with the sale of papers by the George A. Mondt Club, a contest for the best posters, was held in the schools.

The results were amazingly good. The judges were Miss Grace Carter, Mrs. W. B. Twaddle, and Mr. E. H. Brasier, and after much deliberation, they awarded the prizes as follows:

Fifth Grade—1, Jane Chapin; 2, Robert Gordon; 3, Phyllis Hunt.
Sixth Grade—1, Rita Hutchins; 2, Stanley Gallant; 3, O'Neil Robertson.
Seventh Grade—1, Emory Vail; 2, Edna Warrory; 3, Roberta Browne.
Eighth Grade—1, Ellen Taylor; 2, Josephine Thurston; 3, Florine Bean.

ATTENTION!

Friday, May 22nd, is the opening night for the new store at Newry Corner, "Nell's Emporium." Come and see the tempting attractions.

Notable Tibbs of Windy Willows will have on display a new invention to do away with all dishwashing for housekeepers. Don't fail to see that, also the fashion show exhibited by two ladies from Iowa.

RUMFORD WINS FIRST PLACE PLACE IN SPELLING MATCH

There was a fine audience and much interest shown in the Oxford County Spelling Contest held at the American Legion Hall at Rumford last Friday afternoon. This contest included pupils from the fourth to eighth grades and high schools from 11 different towns in the county.

Rumford won first place with 17 points, Norway second with 11 and Mexico third with 10. Carrol Mathison, principal of the junior high school at Farmington, gave out the words and the judges were the superintendents of schools, Redding of Buckfield, Edminister of Norway, and Robinson of Paris.

Grade IV—1, Monica Vulcime, Rumford; 2, Arlene LaPointe, Rumford; 3, Ruth Bean, Oxford.

Grade V—1, Alma Pilpo, Hebron; 2, Eleanor Eaton, Norway; 3, Geraldine Stanley, Bethel.

Grade VI—1, Lois Gilbert, Canton; 2, Wallace MacDonald, Norway; 3, Mary Docteau, Norway.

Rumford, 17; Norway, 11; Mexico, 10; Hebron, 6; Bethel, 6; Woodstock, 5; South Paris, 4; Buckfield, 3; Andover, 2; Oxford, 1.

HIST!

Stealthy footsteps echo softly through each shady sheltered vale. Feet that leave no track behind them. Once again are on the trail. There's a signal fire gleaming. On a ledge towards the West. Only seen by phantom runners. Going at their Chief's behest.

Where the green fields meet the river. Hiding many a dart-filled quiver. There are tepees all unseen. For the August mid. I've seen. On a wide, grassy, grassy meadow. Shaded by one grand elm tree;—If you look with eyes of wisdom, Many a stalwart "brave" you'll see.

Once again from cliff and mountain. Warwhoops ring out all unheard. And "Tom Hegan's" feather headdress. Softly waves, by memory stirred. Glimmering eyes watch all our movements. As the days go by apace; And in every tangled thicket. Maybe there's a painted face.

Swiftly padded feet of silence. Bring our bronzed faces of old. Down the ages past they're coming. And for us still terror hold. List, the tom-toms loud are calling. Signal smoke curls high for them. While the ghosts of mighty warriors. Stalk through every brake and glen.

Where we oft have searched for spear points. On their one time meeting ground. Shadowy "braves" again are camping. But by us are never found. All unseen they dance the war dance. By a weird fantastic light. Once again they draw their bow guns. Try their games of skill and might.

Years ago, we're told, they vanished—Went to happier hunting ground. But upon the third of August. Here in Bethel they'll be found. Well we know that Ancient History. Olden tales oft times repeat. So again the Indian Warriors. Will be seen on Bethel's stage. May 18th, 1931.

ESTELLA BEAN

The many friends and relatives of Estella Bean of Albany were shocked and grieved to hear of her death, which occurred at 1:30 (standard time) Monday morning. She had only been confined to her bed a few days but had been in failing health for the last few years. She bore her affliction with great fortitude and very few realized how much she must have suffered.

She was born in Albany, Sept. 19, 1877, the daughter of Ephraim and Anna (Gibson) Bean, the eldest of a family of seven sisters and brothers. She attended the rural school at Albany Town House, and as a young woman worked with her sister Belle one season at the Bethel House when Mr. Lacey was proprietor. She was also employed in Massachusetts for some time. After that she returned to Albany and tenderly cared for her mother and in invalid brother as long as they lived. Then she mothered the other brothers and sisters till all were married, and a cousin, and then a nephew. She the brother's son, and the cousin Suel Pingree, kept the house Mrs. Bean and a very welcome to all who came their way. She was most efficient in times of sickness and sorrow and a staunch and loyal friend, giving most freely of those things that go so far to make life worth the living.

"One of the salt of the earth," a trite but true saying, applied very aptly to her. Such qualities are sadly lacking in these days of lustre, lustle, speed and still more speed till our ears hum, and our heads fairly spin. How fortunate are those who can leave it all for a while and go back to one like her who welcomes them in out of the din and strife to rest a while and chat of bygone days and feel the frets and worries all vanished for a time by the cheer of one who lives most for others and least for self!

She took an active interest in both old and young, and will be sadly missed by all who knew her.

Until the past winter she had gladly kept the home for the brother and cousin who so cheerfully helped her in all the ways they could. Frail health compelled her to leave another woman to help with the work she had done so faithfully for many years.

She is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Belle Foster of Lowell, Mass., Mrs. Cora Sawin of Bethel, Mrs. Ada Lord of South Paris; two brothers, Sumner of Albany and Arthur of Norway; two nephews, Charles Foster of Lowell, Mass., and Glenon Sawin of Boston, and many cousins.

The services will be held at 11 a.m. this Thursday at 2 P. M., day light time, with Rev. W. I. Ball of North Waterford in attendance and S. S. Green of Bethel officiating. The bearers will be the two brothers, Sumner and Arthur, and two brothers in law, Harry Sawin and Gordon Lord. Interment will be in the family lot in the cemetery at Hunt's Corner.

GOULD TRACK TEAM WINS SECOND PLACE

Heald High Point Man—Twaddle Wins Broad Jump

The Gould Academy track team placed second among eight competing schools in the annual Oxford County Track Meet held at Norway last Saturday. Gould trackmen placed in ten of the 13 events, but were noticeably weak in the mile, half mile, and the pole vault.

Don Heald was high point man for Gould with nine points; Twaddle collected eight with a first in the broad jump and second in the 100 yard dash; Hinkley tied for first in the high jump setting a new county record of five feet five inches, and also ran the relay, contributing 4 1/2 points to the Gould score; Hamlin carried off a second in the 220 yard dash, and placed in the relay for a total of 3 1/2. Learned took third in the 440 yard dash, and also ran the relay, adding 1 1/2 to the Gould score; Lakin contributed one point with a third in the high jump; Joe Stevens added the same amount with a third in the discus, as did McKown in the javelin; Norris Brown ran a nice race in the relay which placed second.

Summary: Rumford, 52; Gould, 31; Mexico, 16; Paris, 9; Andover, 5; Norway, 4.

100 yard dash—Sinclair, Rumford; Twaddle, Gould; Meader, Rumford; Time 10 3/5 seconds.

Shot throw—South Paris; Gould second; Mexico third. Time 3 min. 50 1/2 sec.

A recent evening was enjoyed by the students at the Methodist Church when an informal reception was held in honor of Mr. R. C. Davis and family who are entering in their second year here. A good number were present and a very pleasant program, arranged by Mrs. Robert York, was given. Refreshments were served.

The services will be held at 11 a.m. this Thursday at 2 P. M., day light time, with Rev. W. I. Ball of North Waterford in attendance and S. S. Green of Bethel officiating. The bearers will be the two brothers, Sumner and Arthur, and two brothers in law, Harry Sawin and Gordon Lord. Interment will be in the family lot in the cemetery at Hunt's Corner.

HOW

TERM "WISEACRE" BECAME A WORD OF CONTUMPT.
"Wiseacre" is a corrupted form of German "weissager," meaning a prophet, soothsayer, or one who foretells the future. Centuries ago it was applied to learned persons and scholars. For instance, John Leland referred to Pythagoras as "a mighty wiseacre." The word, however, has completely lost its original meaning and now is applied to one who makes undue pretensions to wisdom, or a would-be wise person. According to an old story a country gentleman once boasted of his vast estates in the presence of Ben Jonson, while they were sipping wine in the Devil's tavern on Fleet street. Jonson replied: "What care we for your dirt and clouds? Where you have an acre of land I have ten acres of wit." As the country gentleman left the room he retorted: "All right, Mr. Wiseacre."—Pathfinder Magazine.

How Average Man Ekes Out His Allotted Time

It is interesting to learn, based on research, that man sleeps an average of 23 of his 70 allotted years. He works—contrary to popular belief—only 18 out of those 70 years. He spends 4 years of his life reading newspapers, books and magazines, 1 year, 6 months at play, 2 1/2 years idling, and only 3 months less than that washing, shaving and dressing. He devotes some 2 years 3 months to walking, riding on cars, on train ships and in automobiles, airplanes etc.

Three full years he spends eating his food, while another year and 3 months are devoted to sexual. A year and 6 months, usually, represents time out for sickness.

Radio, movies and various other forms of entertainment claim 3 1/2 years of man's life. The remaining 7 years and 60 days may be classed as "sundries."—Copper's Weekly.

How Light Stimulates Bess
By cutting a window in the bottom of the liver, a California beekeeper has devised a way to prevent the queen bees from leaving the colony and to increase the yield of honey. Says Popular Mechanics Magazine: An opening, 10 by 15 inches in size, was made and a glass installed. The hive was raised a few inches above the ground and wide paper spread under it to reflect the light into the brood combs. With this device, it was unnecessary to use a queen excluder, and the keeper found that bees equipped with the window yielded from 200 to 250 pounds of honey, while the others not so equipped, had from 50 to 60 pounds.

TWO-MINUTE SERMON

by REV. GEORGE HENRY

CONSCIENCE
Is your conscience clear? Good. But, because this is so, you should not conclude that you are right. Conscience is not necessarily the voice of God. Conscience tells one man a thing is right and informs another that the same thing is wrong. It tells one man a certain thing is true and another that it is false. Truth is of a single tongue. Truth is ONE, not TWO. Inform your mind and cleanse your soul, read God's word and bow in prayer before you follow the dictates of conscience. Saul of Tarsus thought he did God's will when he hounded the followers of Christ to death, but after his experience on the Damascus road he became the champion of that same Christ. Conscience is a safe guide only when a man has been educated at the feet of the great Master.

THE thing started out peacefully, trustfully. It was the idea, primarily. It had to be for some time that the widow would live for out on a half a mile from another house to the railroad tracks. But ways rilling the freight omnibus, and they usually of the cars, short of town, in, so as not to be caught railroad detectives always a yards.

And in winter weather, times sweeping the country, plenty tough. The widow house offered a shining mark. It was a neat, small house; as though the one in it was off. If they watched, and that she was alone in the house, in that house there was pie tramp might be interested shelter, perhaps some money by valuable that could be turned for cash in hook shops. It didn't like dogs; and she had phones . . . and she was firearms. It was bad business ought to be made to take so sure for her protection. And the sheriff was personally in the pretty widow, since bachelor. Tonight he started Walter Bumble, the grocer drove to within a block of . . . got out. Bumble was to the house; make suspicious rattle a window, as though somebody trying to get in. Then he would try to knock . . . when the widow was frightened, and convinced of her of her ways, the sheriff drop in.

For the visit, the sheriff his Sunday suit. He had collected mane of black hair in rigid order. He had clean nails, and had a shampoo down barber shop; that the widow took upon him with complete vor, he knew . . . but she had made no progress into his tions.

Everything went fine until began to rattle a window a listen to hear what might . . . What he heard sent it to the sheriff, waiting behind. "There's a man in there with a fellow with a big deep voice talking to her so loud, I get didn't even hear me rattle a dow."

"Were they quarreling?" threatening her? The sheriff "Nope; she was talking to an ordinary way. Some friend I reckon." The sheriff and a ble slunk off. But, in a sum that was not likely to be the rumor spread. In vain the sheriff told Bumble he'd block off if he didn't keep his shut. At last the sheriff, upon stem the tide of gossip, drove see the widow. He was embarrassed his hat nervously, as him into her parlor.

"What's on your mind, Sam?" asked.

"Nothing," he told her, emboldened. "On mine; but there's a don't like on the odds of around here. They're talking can't stop 'em. Listen, Sam, no great shakes at making love that's why I'm a bachelor; but eat-to-goodness think a lot of been wanting to marry you for time for more than sufficient reasons . . . now I got another son for wanting to do it. I he in a position to break the any man who dares to say about you."

"But what do they say?" she "They say that a man comes at night sometimes. Somebody heard you talking to him alone at night, not long ago."

"Suppose, Sam," she said, "to tell you that I've not only to that man, but that I kissed lots of times . . . would you want to marry me?"

"If you wanted me more than any would," Sam said, "and believe nothing wrong. If you love me more than him . . ."

"But I don't," she said, "him more than you."

"Then I'll be going," Sam said the first time the widow was tied. This big, handsome strong miserable, looking like a boy who lost his best friend . . . too much for the widow. She to a corner. Opened a phonograph on a record. Presently heard a deep, hearty voice; there rouses with remarks of her own turned to him when the record over.

"My husband," she explained, the record for fun one day; an executive in a place that married records. Sometimes I record when I was strange I skimming around. They hear I think there's a man in the house go away. It's better than a sh or a dog."

"Better," Sam asked shyly, "live husband?"

"Well . . ." the widow heard and then, at last, Sam got up the to take her into his arms and kiss. After that it was all over but the and vigorous:</

Bashful Sheriff Won by Clever Ruse

THE thing started out perfectly all right. It was the sheriff's idea, primarily. It had worried him for some time that the widow Watkins would live far out on Apple road, half a mile from another house, near the railroad tracks. Bums were always riding the freights in from Omaha; and they usually dropped off the cars, short of town, and walked in, so as not to be caught by the railroad detectives always alert in the yards.

And in winter weather, with hard times sweeping the country, they were plenty tough. The widow Watkins house offered a shining mark for them. ## The Boyhood of Famous Americans

By I. V. Fitzgerald

Henry Morgenthau

The English language was not easy for the ten-year-old boy who had just come to this country from southern Germany. He had his greatest difficulty pronouncing the diphthong "th". So he said "over" and "over" again, day in and out for weeks: "Theophilus Thistle, the great thistle sifter, sifted one steveful of unsifted thistles through the thick of the thumb," in order to overcome the handicap.

This method, together with hard and conscientious study, enabled him to gain a command of the language rapidly and to keep up with his class in the New York public schools. It was characteristic of Henry Morgenthau as a boy to do things thoroughly and leave nothing in his power undone that he might master his immediate task.

The trait helped him in gaining a fine education in the land of his adoption, to become a commanding figure in the real estate and financial worlds and to achieve a signal success as a diplomat when he was named as ambassador to Turkey.

He was born in Mannheim, Germany, in 1856. He little thought, when as a youngster he was thrilled at song festivals and exhibitions of gymnasts, that he would grow to man's estate and gain fame in a country across the sea. His father was a wealthy cigar manufacturer and the boy, Henry, was the ninth of eleven living children.

He was a good student as a lad in Germany, helped in his studies by a cultured mother and father. He knew the works of Schiller and Goethe as a little fellow. But perhaps his greatest achievement in the place of his birth, in his own opinion at the time, was when he successfully passed the swimming test tried by youngsters of athletic tendencies. He breasted the Rhine current for half an hour in qualifying for the coveted title of "Rhine Swimmer."

Not long after this the elder Morgenthau's prosperous business met with reverses through an American tariff law. The family came to this country. The Morgenthaus arrived in 1866, after an eleven-day trip. They took up their residence in Brooklyn. A few months later they moved to Manhattan.

The young newcomer to America soon grasped the intricacies of the language of his adopted country, thanks to his perseverance and his novel methods. He had a natural aptitude for arithmetic and by strict application to his studies he was able to reach the highest class in his school in short order. Then he qualified for admission to the City college, standing well up among 300 successful candidates in the group of 500 applicants.

He got his first job as an errand boy in a law office during the vacation months. The pay was $1 a week. Part of his duties consisted of copying and serving papers. He joined a good library, took special courses in debating and elocution, devoted much time to grammar and composition and read widely of good literature.

He didn't finish his course at City college. His father had met with further financial reverses in this country and young Henry had to put his shoulder to the wheel, helping the family as much as he could financially. His father wanted him to enter a civil engineer's office and study that profession, but the fifteen-year-old boy was convinced that he lacked proper foundation in mathematics to make a go of it.

So he became an office boy, agreeing to help with the books in an insurance office in 1871. Here he drew a weekly wage of $5. After a few months he went to work in a wholesale house at $10 a week. The next year saw him back in a law office.

By this time his mind was made up to become a lawyer. He systematized his life so as to get in a maximum amount of work, and still have time for study and exercise. His recreation consisted of walking and reading. He was up every morning at six o'clock and took a walk, or exercised at home. Then he rode on a horse car to reach his work. The journey to downtown New York from his home was a slow one. The lad devoted the time to the reading of good books.

He kept accounts of his expenses in those days. A typical entry was: "Car fare, 10 cents; dinner, 15 cents; sundries, 2 cents."

He was nineteen years old when he entered the Columbia university law school in 1873. He got a job teaching light school at $15 a week. He spent all the time he could spare in libraries. He attended as many lectures as he could and listened to the famous speakers of the day. He made notes on what he heard. He was a wide reader of the newspapers.

He was admitted to the bar in 1877. Later he became interested in real estate and did much to develop New York into the metropolis it is today. He has given liberally of his wealth to social service and other philanthropies.

MRS. SYLVIA HOWARD

Mrs. Sylvia Howard passed away Tuesday evening, May 14, at her home in the town of Hanover after a lingering illness.

Mrs. Howard was born in Bethel January 10th, 1854, the daughter of the late George and Mary Saunders Ellingwood. She acquired her education in the public schools of that town and later in life married Norville Howard of Hanover, coming to the black place where she has since resided. Two children were born to this union, Forest, Blaise Howard, who died in infancy and Nellie, wife of Ezra Chapman, who has faithfully and tenderly cared for her parents. Mr. Howard passed away July 5, 1920.

The deceased was a woman of a sound, sensible mind, had a jovial disposition and always had a keen insight in the ways of life. She was a kind and faithful friend and neighbor and will be much missed from the community. She was a member of Bear River Grange.

Besides the daughter, Mrs. Howard is survived by a sister, Mrs. Melvina Cole of West Paris, the last surviving member of a family of seven. There are several pieces and nephews.

Funeral services were held at her home Saturday afternoon, May 16, Rev. J. A. Blaisdell speaking tender words of sympathy to the bereaved ones. Committal was in the family lot in Hanover cemetery, where many flowers, beautiful tributes of love and respect, covered the last resting place of that saint but ever growing child.

"In the home so sad and lonely
There remains a vacant seat
And we listen for a foot fall
That we would with pleasure greet.
When on earth our life is ended
We shall meet at God's right hand,
Where the sweetest joys are blended
In that happy angel land."

MRS. BERT BENNETT

Mrs. Marjorie Jackson Bennett, wife of Bert Bennett of Oiled, passed away Tuesday, May 19, at the home of her father in Portland, where she had been for several months.

Mrs. Bennett was born at Newry, April 10, 1904, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert W. Jackson. She married Bert Bennett of Oiled in April, 1923, and made her home in Oiled. She was a graduate of Gould Academy in the class of 1921, and a member of the Bethel Congregational church.

She is survived by her husband, three children, Shirley, Rona and Jackson of Oiled; her father, Herbert W. Jackson of Portland; one sister, Mrs. Charles Parker of Oiled; and two brothers, Arthur and Chester Jackson of Portland.

The remains were brought to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Chapman in Mayville where the funeral services will be held at four o'clock this Thursday afternoon. Burial will be at Sunday River.

QUALITY VS. QUANTITY IN FOOD FOR THE ADOLESCENT

An adolescent boy may eat as much as his stomach will hold and then not have as much as he actually needs unless the food is the right kind. Therese L. Wood, foods specialist, says the following about meals for the adolescent boy:

"In addition to the foundation foods of the diet, which include daily a quart of milk, two vegetables in addition to potatoes, two servings of fruit and cereals or grain foods, and a protein food as meat, fish, eggs, dried peas or beans, he needs some concentrated foods such as marmalade, peanut butter, ice cream, butter, cream and cookies."

"The adolescent girl," she says, "needs the same foundation foods as the boy but her appetite is not apt to be as keen as that of the boy and unless she is watched and fed adequate food she will at the time, as nutrition may not be normal development can be hindered. At this period as well as at that of the boy, the diet must be varied."

"In feeding the adolescent boy or girl, the diet should be varied and the food should be of high quality. The diet should be varied and the food should be of high quality. The diet should be varied and the food should be of high quality."

Gould Academy Notes

Miss Margaret C. Herriek, an alumna of Gould, now employed in the State Department of Health, recently addressed the girls of the school on the subject, Hygiene for Girls. Miss Herriek's easy and informal, yet forcible manner of presenting her subject made her talk most interesting. The rapid attention of her audience gave evidence of the appreciation which Miss Herriek's hearers had for her worthwhile message. Miss Herriek's headquarters are in the Augusta office, but much of her time is spent in lecturing throughout the State.

Each member of the senior class was given the opportunity to compete in writing a class ode. The one submitted by Barbara Herriek has been selected as the best.

The girls of the Students' Home are giving a May Ball this week Thursday evening. The proceeds will be used to swell the radio fund.

Recently students are glad to hear that Miss Frances King of the Junior Class is making a good recovery from her recent surgical operation. She is at the St. Barnabas Hospital in Portland.

Friends of James Alger will be pleased to know that he has passed his final examinations for West Point with high honors and will be admitted July first.

The Honor Roll for the last reporting period includes the following names:

FIRST LIST
Seniors—Kathryn Herriek, George Anderson, Melvin Mattinson.
Juniors—Katherine Carter, Sophomores—Stanley Allen, Barbara Bennett.

FRESHMEN—Shirley Cole, Richard Marshall, Mary Tibbitts.
SENIORS—Barbara Herriek, Eleanor Linell.
JUNIORS—Richard Hall, Sophomores—Leslie Leonard.
FRESHMEN—Stanley Allen, Barbara Bennett.

THE LUCKY 4-H CLOVER CLUB

The The Lucky 4-H Clover Club of East Bethel held their second meeting May 16 at the home of Miss Ellen Burns, a 4-H Club member. The girls took up sewing and the boys talked about farming. The club members also planned for an entertainment to get enough money for the club projects. We served refreshments of fudge, candy and lemonade. We all enjoyed a good time and also played games.

FRANK J. RUSSELL CELEBRATES EIGHTY-FOURTH BIRTHDAY

Frank J. Russell, a former resident of Bethel and now living at Norway, celebrated his 84th birthday on May 17. ### RED POPPIES

Red poppies, red poppies, oh how I wish I had a growing lot of them. I wish I had a growing lot of them. I wish I had a growing lot of them. I wish I had a growing lot of them.

We'd not put a best we should get The book and I'm sure we have with us yet. They left all the best of their lives above here on the banks of the Maine where red poppies grow.

It was there where red poppies really grew. Some comrades as I find them, a too many graves. Now on the hillside as I find them. While in life they poppies their long fight keep.

Buy a red poppy for those who are injured. To the land which in spite of their hands is sacred. An army of peace may our flag be for the world.

News Review of Current Events the World Over

President Hoover Orders Drastic Economies in Departments—Old Military Posts May Be Abandoned—Briand Is Defeated.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

PRESIDENT HOOVER has notified the members of the cabinet that they must introduce economies in their departments wherever possible. The civilian personnel is to be reduced and the overhead expenses cut drastically. The message went out after the President had conferred with Secretary of War Huron and Secretary of the Navy Adams. It is evident he expects many of the economies to be made effective in those departments.

There have been recently made cutting down savings could be made the sale of old Indian posts, navy stations, coast artillery fortifications, and yards and other shore facilities of the navy that are no longer needed for purposes of national defense. Secretary Hurley said the day that the administration decided to remove army posts from the "black barrel" classification, and it is that among those considered for removal are Fort Lincoln, North Dakota; Fort Meade, South Dakota; Fort Missoula, Montana; Fort Eustis, Virginia, and various posts along the Mexican border. Some air flying fields may be abandoned. How far the economies of the military establishments can be cut is problematical.

The last annual supply bill for the department carried about $445,000, of which approximately $111,000 was to be devoted to nonmilitary activities. The latter figure included $90,000,000 for rivers and harbors and $35,000,000 for Mississippi control.

For the navy, it is known that an labor cost that department $100,000 last year. Some official ingators have estimated the Navy department personnel at Washington to be cut as much as 40 per cent without impairing efficiency.

Legislators in whose states are located the obsolete army posts and shore stations probably will be against their abandonment, that their habit in matters of this kind if economies are applied without all the executive departments their political wrath may be falling.

ED C. CROXTON, vice chairman of the President's emergency committee for unemployment, stated that by the week ending May 9 Congress were awarded for public and public work amounting to $27,000. This brought the total since November 1, 1930, to nearly a billion a half.

REIGN MINISTERS Aristide Briand was persuaded by friends to be a candidate for the presidency of the French republic and some of those who let him down. The result was that Briand was elected the first ballot.

CLERICALS of Spain, egged on by communists and very possibly by monarchist plotters, staged riot in Madrid and other cities for several days, and the government was forced to proclaim martial law. The mobs directed their attacks against Catholic churches and religious edifices and burned many of them. Monks and nuns were driven through the streets. In some cases the troops that were sent out refused to move against rioters, telling their officers they did not fire on the people.

SECRETARY OF STATE HENRY L. STIMSON, in an address on United States foreign relations and especially American policy toward Latin America, served notice that our army and navy will not be used to collect debts from foreign nations. At the same time, he made it clear, the present administration would give to Americans who have investments abroad all the protection, counsel and assistance to which they are entitled under international law.

Defending the Hoover policies in Nicaragua, which have been attacked, Stimson declared the administration was not departing from American traditions. Adding that "the United States would continue to be zealous in its concern for the lives of its nationals wherever they may be found."

He characterized the current policy toward Latin America as one of removing sore spots which have injured good will and American trade.

Mr. Stimson expressed confidence that the Anglo-French negotiations would eventually be successfully concluded, expressing the opinion that a great stimulus had been given the prospects for success of the league conference on general disarmament to be held next February.

Cultivation of good will between nations was described by him as "the great business of diplomacy."

"Honest people in one nation find it notoriously difficult to understand the viewpoint of honest people in another," he said. "State departments and their ministers exist for the purpose of translating the viewpoints of one nation into the terms understood by another. Some of our most important work and efforts at the present time lies in this direction."

PRAJADHIPHOK, king of Siam, underwent a successful operation for the removal of a cataract from his left eye, and is recovering nicely at Ophir hall, the Whitelaw Field mansion in Westchester county, New York. He was an excellent patient and, being under only local anesthesia, he knew what was going on and co-operated in every way with Drs. J. M. Wheeler and T. N. Johnson, who performed the operation. When the cataract had been extracted his majesty said: "I see the light."

FIFTY railway executives have united in asking an increase of freight rates that would bring $450,000,000 more revenue to their roads, but it will not be granted without a fight. Duncan U. Fletcher, senator from Florida and ranking Democrat on the senate commerce committee, voiced the opposition to the plan. He called for lower rates rather than higher carrying charges and said one reason why trucks were moving so much freight today was because of "high rail rates."

"I cannot see how the railroads can expect to increase their revenues by increasing rates," he said. "Some ten years ago an increase of 40 per cent was allowed the railroads and this brought the rates up to the highest point ever reached. They have been revised downward by the interstate commerce commission in 5,000 out of 6,000 cases brought."

"Today the railroads complain of a loss of business and lay a good deal of that to competition by trucks and to some extent airplanes. Undoubtedly they would increase their revenues by raising the rates provided they could carry the same amount of tonnage, but it is perfectly obvious that one reason why trucks are moving so much freight is because of the high rail rates. Consequently if these rates were increased there would be an inevitable decrease in tonnage."

Freight rates on live stock from western points into Cleveland were attacked by the chamber of commerce of that city in a complaint to the interstate commerce commission asking a reduction.

ONE of the world's greatest scientists, Prof. Albert A. Michelson, formerly of the University of Chicago, passed away in Pasadena, Calif., after a long illness and was laid at rest in Altadena. Doctor Michelson was a native of Poland but was brought to the United States when a babe and was educated in San Francisco and the naval academy at Annapolis. Two years after his graduation he went back to the academy as an instructor and it was then he began the experiments and investigations that continued throughout his long life.

Defending the Hoover policies in Nicaragua, which have been attacked, Stimson declared the administration was not departing from American traditions. Adding that "the United States would continue to be zealous in its concern for the lives of its nationals wherever they may be found."

He characterized the current policy toward Latin America as one of removing sore spots which have injured good will and American trade.

Mr. Stimson expressed confidence that the Anglo-French negotiations would eventually be successfully concluded, expressing the opinion that a great stimulus had been given the prospects for success of the league conference on general disarmament to be held next February.

"Honest people in one nation find it notoriously difficult to understand the viewpoint of honest people in another," he said. "State departments and their ministers exist for the purpose of translating the viewpoints of one nation into the terms understood by another. Some of our most important work and efforts at the present time lies in this direction."

SOUTH WOODSTOCK

Sunday, May 17, was one of the most beautiful days of the spring time. Many attended church. What a privilege to these able to attend such services.

Stanley Andrews is much better from his recent illness. He returned to his school work at West Paris High this week.

Linwood Andrews played the banjo in "Shen's Orchestra" at Oxford May 15. "Pete" is a natural musical genius, and can entertain, both vocal and instrumental, whenever the occasion demands.

The little child of Charles Smith, reported last week as being badly ruptured, still lives, but apparently not as well, as a second operation has been found necessary.

Harry Page of Andover was through the place recently delivering the material for dresses and evening gowns previously ordered. Mr. Page will go to Prout's Neck for his fourth season at that place about June 10.

Two auto loads of tourists spent the late evening of Saturday last and early morning of Sunday on the grounds of Union Church at Davis Corner. They were evidently very tired from a long journey but the lowering of cattle and the rattle of milk pails at a nearby farmhouse soon put the party in action for further enjoyment of their contemplated trip.

Claud Collins of the Magalloway has hired the Fred Beck place and will spend the summer in hunting and fishing where his sporting friends will find a hearty welcome.

Union School of South Woodstock was represented at the Spelling Contest at Rumford Friday, May 15. Miss Mary Hendrickson, the teacher, took the representatives of this school to Rumford and announced on their return "congratulations are to be ours." In Union School we have the champion speller of the town of Woodstock.

Norman Perham, the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Perham of this town, will graduate from the eighth grade of Union School in June, and will then commence a course of instruction at Pine Tree Academy, Auburn.

Lynel Eicher and Betty Sawyer of Lewiston were guests at A. M. Andrews' the week end. On Sunday they were tendered a lovely dinner with other invited guests, the occasion being to commemorate the birthday of both Betty and Lynel. They are both the same age.

Gerald F. Davis was on Curtis Hill recently, being a caller at J. Alton Bicknell's. Mr. Bicknell, formerly of West Paris, now lives on what was once known as the "Cale Fuller" place in Woodstock. For some reason Mr. Fuller petitioned the legal authorities and had this place annexed to the town of Paris, which now so remains. A few years later Mr. Fuller retired from farm life and moved to West Paris village. Therefore Mr. Bicknell though living in Paris is enjoying the picturesque scenery of Curtis Hill in Woodstock. Mr. Bicknell is the only son of

HANOVER

Mrs. Frank Barrows of Gorham, N. H., was the guest of Mrs. Roena Silver last week.

C. F. Saunders and family visited at his sister's, Mrs. J. D. Kimball's, in Poland Sunday.

Ethel Bellevue spent several days in Portland recently.

Clement Worcester, Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Russell, Mr. and Mrs. Richardson and Miss Blanche Russell were at the Lakes Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Richardson and daughter are guests of Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Russell.

Rehearsals are going on steadily for the comedy-drama, "Windy Willows," to be put on soon at Newry Corner. Several Hanover young people are in it.

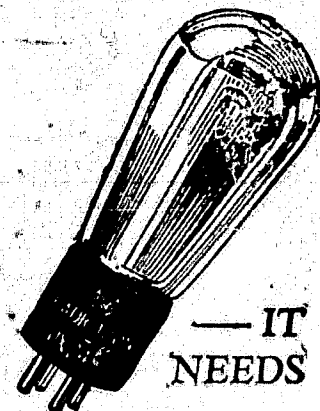

Mrs. Lucy Dyke, Mrs. Carrie French of Bethel, Miss Doris Worcester and the delegate from Andover left Tuesday morning for Bangor, to attend Grand Temple.

Several ladies attended the whist party at Mrs. McPherson's, Newry Corner, Thursday afternoon, for the benefit of the Pythian Sisters.

The late Mr. and Mrs. John Bicknell of well known hotel fame, they being for many years the proprietors of the Glen Mountain House, Bryant Pond, and the Maple House, West Paris. The three sisters, Agnes, Nell and Evelyn, who were assistants in the hotel, are reported as being well and living in their cozy homes in West Paris village.

The Big Parade

The buyer today should not fare forth with uncertainty when making a purchase. The merchants most considerate of the interests of their customers and themselves each week have in the Citizen's columns an opportunity to present a message to their customers, setting forth their wares in a pleasing weekly parade before the Citizen's readers.

Consistent advertisers offer a real service to their community.

Prince of Wales

American business and advertising methods. The prince is delivering a series of speeches dealing with conditions he found prevalent in South America during his recent tour.

Not only did Wales score British business methods, but he also dipped into politics in a way that caused a sensation. His advocacy of "manufacturing within tariff walls" cuts squarely across the hottest political issue of the moment in Britain—tariff versus free trade—and was an unexpected blow to the free trade labor government.

PRESIDENT HOOVER has appointed George Hastings of New York as a member of the White House secretarial staff to succeed French Strother. Mr. Hastings is given the title of executive clerk and will handle the President's outside social welfare interests, including his contacts with the conference on child health and protection. He will take up his duties about June 1 after 15 years of social welfare work in New York.

THERE is consternation in gangland. And pleased surprise among the decent citizens of Chicago. Al Capone, the redoubtable gangster chieftain, hitherto looked upon as almost unconquerable, has been defied and is seemingly doomed to fall in one of his latest efforts to add to his monetary stores. It is the dyeing and cleaning industry of Chicago, which has been a fruitful field for racketeers, that has done the defying, and in its bold stand it is backed up by the law enforcing agencies of the city and state.

"Scarface" thought the time was ripe for him to take charge of the industry, and through agents he informed the Cleaners and Dyers Institute that he would do so for 75 per cent of its annual receipts in membership dues, which would be about $100,000. For this he promised to keep prices up, to police the industry and to bring into line any recalcitrant members. A committee from the Institute met Capone in his hotel headquarters in Chicago and he repeated his offer, reducing his demands to 50 per cent but declaring if his offer were not accepted he would take over the industry anyhow. The Institute, however, happens to have as its chairman Dr. Benjamin M. Squires, honest and nervy, who had practically freed the industry from the racketeers. He told Capone no gangster associations would be tolerated, and State Attorney Swanson promised to support him to the limit in this stand.

Capone's efforts to take over the dyeing and cleaning industry were regarded by Assistant State Attorney Charles J. Mueller, in charge of racketeer prosecutions, as an indication of the reverses suffered by the gang in recent months.

"There is no question that Capone's mob has been hard hit, and that he needs money," said Prosecutor Mueller. "His gambling racket has felt the force of raids by the police and the state's attorney's office, in connection with the special grand jury, and some of his biggest breweries have been raided by the federal agents. The prosecution of the big shots in the gang by the federal government, and the high bonds required, have no doubt caused Capone to look around for new ways of raising money."

FRANCE'S amateur boxing champions, eight in number, who came over to meet the team of American champions from Chicago and New York in the former city, were defeated but made a good showing. They lost five of the bouts and won three. The tournament was a feature of Chicago's fortnight of "Jubilee."
